Concert of the Centenary

The Bendigo Bank Centenary Concert is bringing together local talent, to perform in a one off must see event.

The centenary concert will show case Merbein's talent, with participants in the concert all coming from Merbein. Some of the performers live locally and others are travelling back to share their talents.

The audience will have a chance to see performances that cover a board range of entertainment. This includes musical, dance and singing acts.

Concert organiser Mavis Frances says "This is an exciting chance for locals and visitors to see what talent has emerged from Merbein.

Some of the twenty-four acts include piano and ballet solos, sword dancing and individual and choirs singing.

The concert will be on Saturday 15th August and will run for one and three quarter hours.

Concert organiser Kay Wagner says "Locals, as well as those travelling back to Merbein for the centenary have bought tickets for the concert. There are still some available but I would advise people to get their tickets now to avoid disappointment."

The concert starts at 7.30pm and tickets costs $15.00 each and can be purchased at the Merbein Centenary Office. The concert will be held at the Mercy Theatre on Eleventh Street.

Please see attached bios for further information on performers.
